ABOUT US

THE SAUDI ART COUNCIL

"Each year, the Saudi Art Council strives to take another step in the right direction a step that will bring us closer to our vision of making art and culture available to all, to instill it as right, and not a privilege, to be experienced and enjoyed as part of daily life and equally important, to provide the tools through which it can be appreciated and understood. It is always said that art is universal and part of our human nature. While recently art has been used as means for crosscultural understanding, it is our fervent hope that it can also be used to better understand ourselves."

EARTH AND EVER AFTER 2017

CURATED BY MONA KHAZINDAR & HAMZA SERAFI

PLAY VIDEO

ABOUT THE EXHIBITION

The Earth is the collective memory that is bound to our subconscious. She is a reflection of ourselves manifesting as a constant flow of images that teem with scent, taste and color.

As we regard Earth as a living, breathing being, she regards us as well, monitoring the tread of humanity upon her surface and how it marks her. She sends us signs in the guise of ecosystems that have begun to disappear as a result of our greed, and omens that reveal how far we have strayed from our humanity.

This exhibition reflects on humanity's relationship with the Earth, to explore whether it is reconciled with their own personal bond and how an artist's environment is inextricably bound to his sense of identity and roots.

EXHIBITION ARCHIVE

WORKSHOPS & TALKS

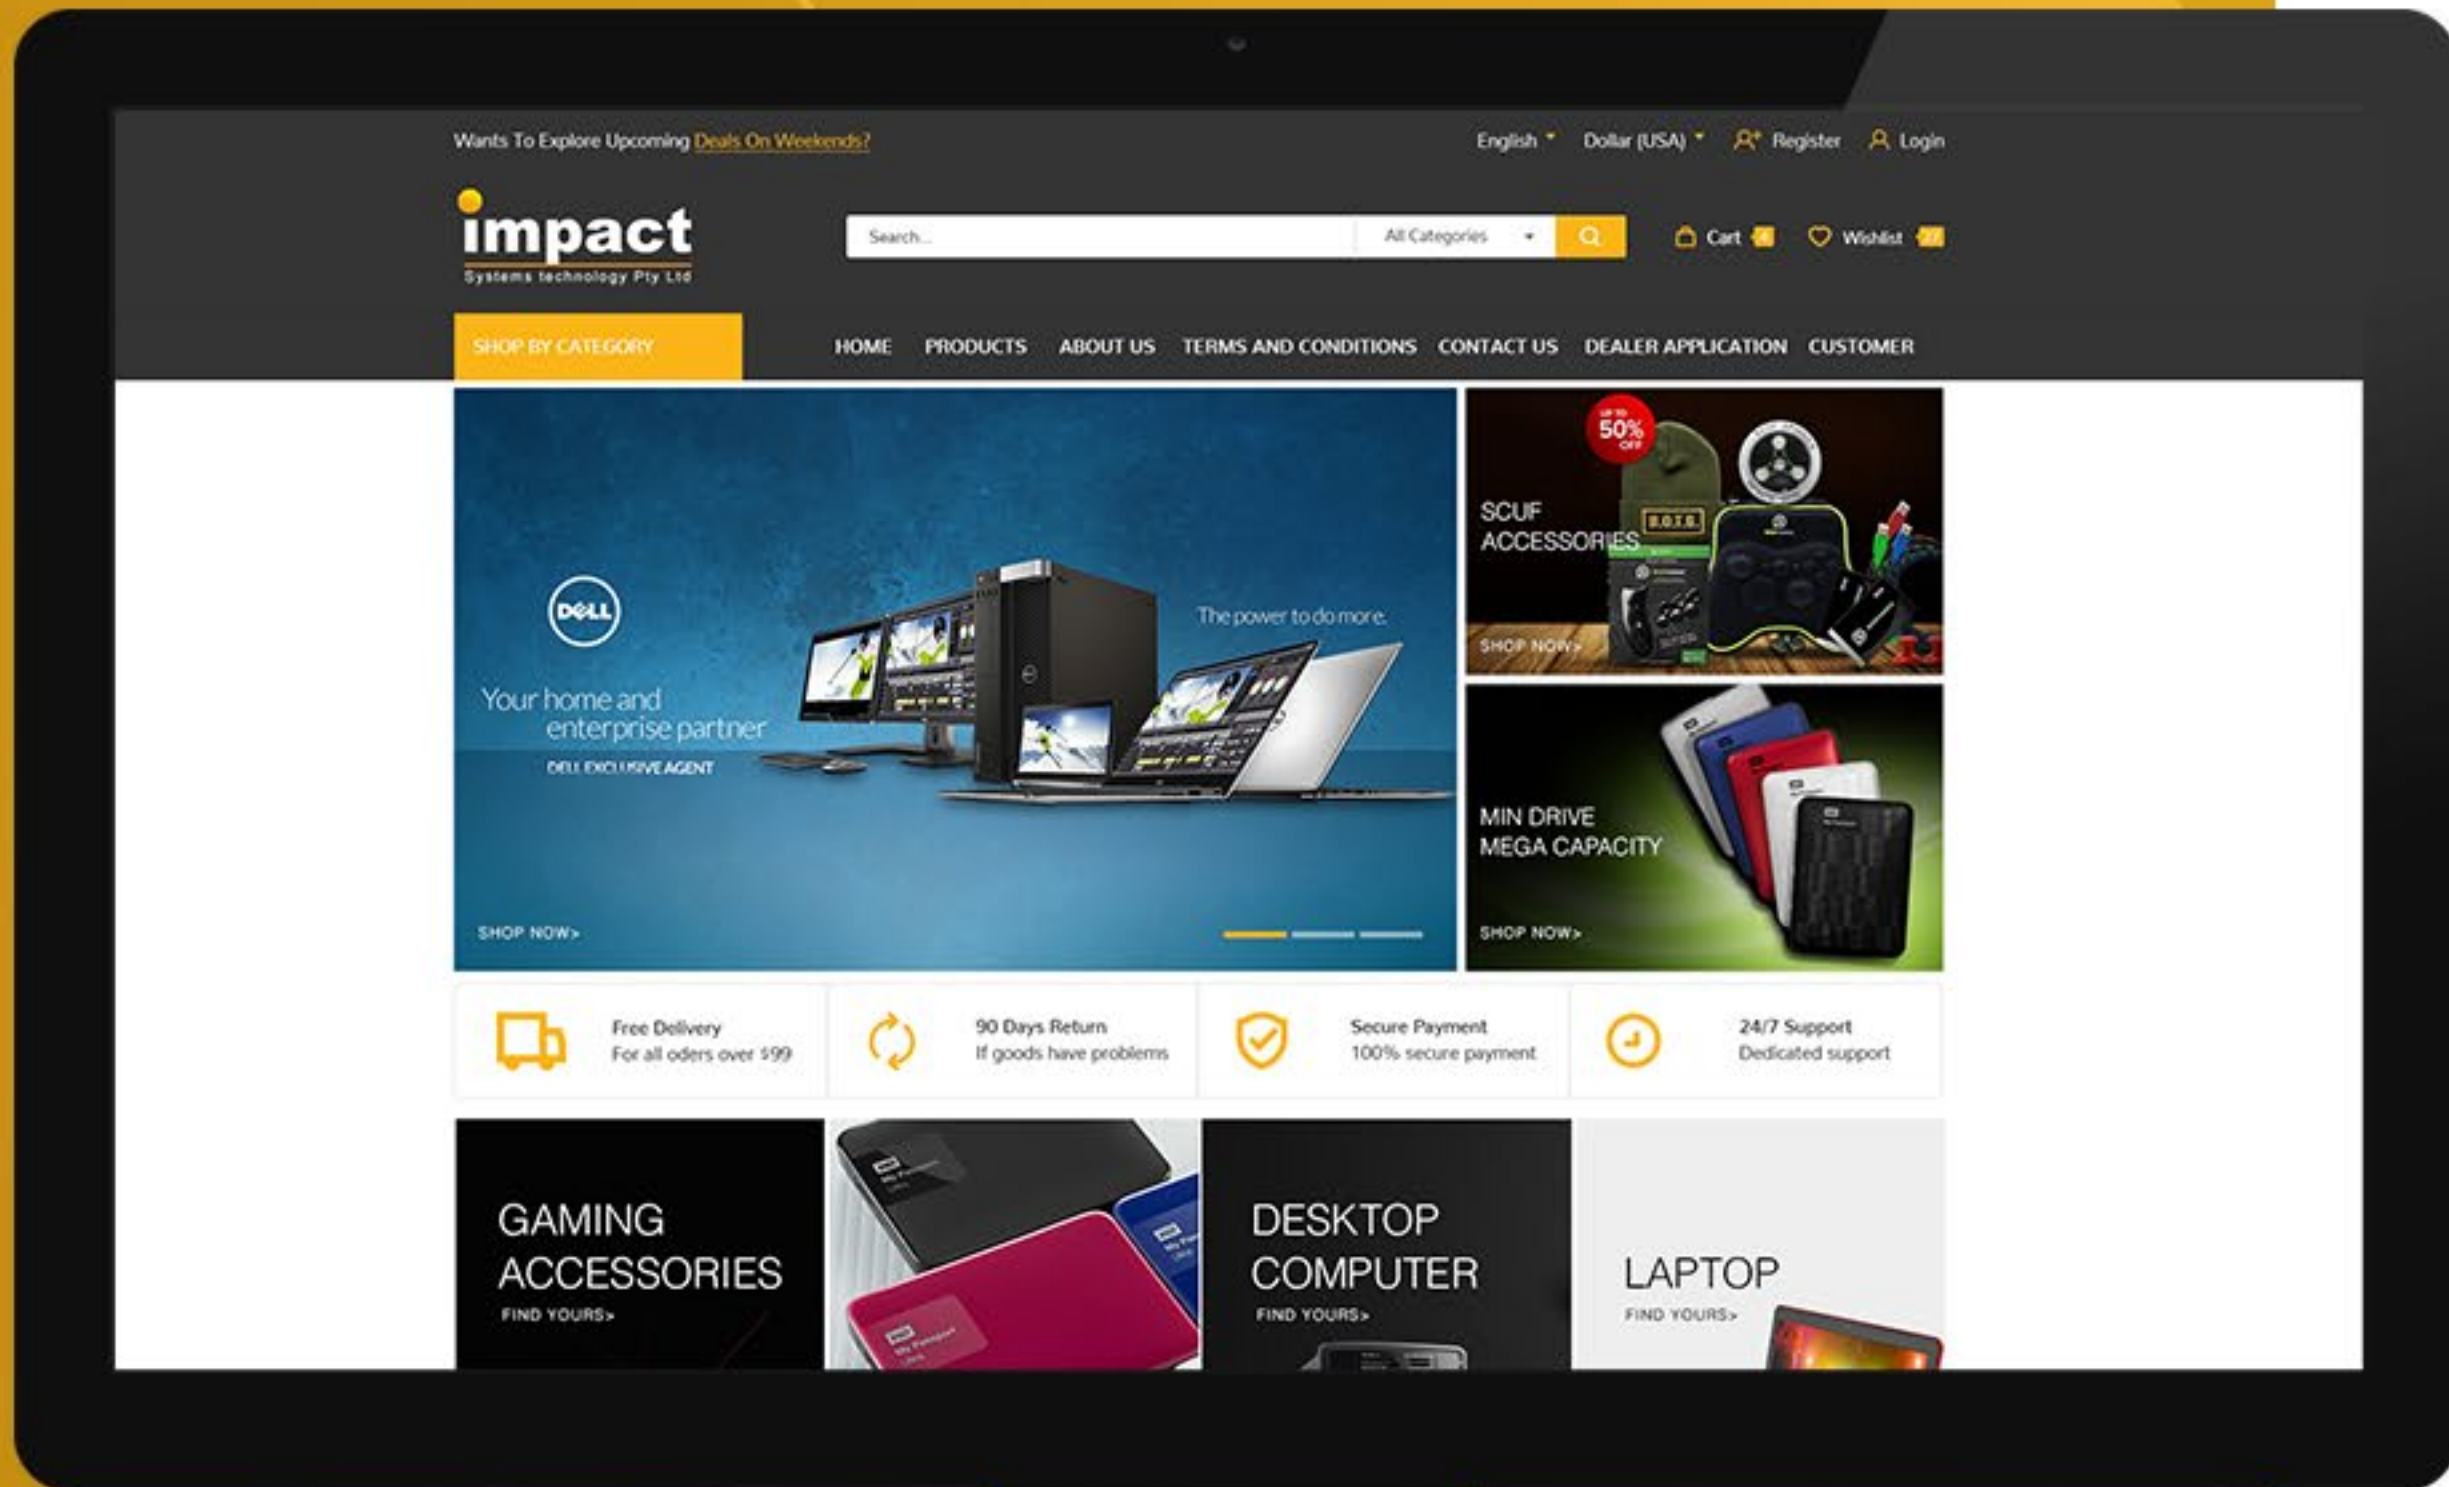

JEDDATNA

BY AYMAN YOSSRI DAVIDSAN

The workshop aims to reinforce affiliation and expression of the human relationship with his/her land, because a homeland doesn't merely mean the land, it exceeds that, and dives into existential awareness. As human emotion has been molded in a way or another on the need to belong to a certain place.

In this workshop participants were asked to bring a sample of the earth.

Professor Yunus is the founder and managing director of Grameen Bank which helps people lift themselves out of poverty in rural Bangladesh by providing credit without requiring collateral. Grameen Bank has lent more than US$1 billion to more than five million borrowers, 99 per cent of which have maintained their loan repayments.

He and the bank were awarded the 2006 Nobel Peace Prize "for their efforts to create economic and social development from below", based on the premise that poor people can be both reliable borrowers and avid entrepreneurs. His ideas on micro-credit have now been taken up and applied across developing nations on five continents.

Other confirmed speakers for this year's Leaders in Dubai Business Forum 2007, which will be held at the Dubai International Convention Centre from November 18-20, include former UN Secretary General Kofi Annan; entrepreneur Sir Richard Branson; business strategy gurus Robert S Kaplan, Philip Kotler and Steve Forbes; plus Google's Nikesh Arora.

The Bangladeshi social entrepreneur will be elaborating on his personal view that banks engage in the "most flagrant financial apartheid" when it comes to lending to poor people.

Professor Yunus considers poverty to be an artificial creation that does not belong to human civilisation and believes there is a need for institutions and their policies to be radically redesigned. He will tell delegates to the Forum that charity is not a long-term strategy for addressing the global imbalances between rich and poor.

"Our experience has shown that most people want to be able to help themselves, and not rely on others," Professor Yunus says. "Often all it takes is a bit of encouragement and some seed capital."
